The United Nations would like to thank the coordinators on Victim Assistance, Austria and Chile, for their work towards the implementation of Article 5 of the Convention.

In the words of the United Nations Secretary-General, *“there are more than one billion people with disabilities in the world. universalization of the Anti-Personnel Mine Ban Convention, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Convention on Cluster Munitions.

In early 2023, the UN endorsed an International Mine Action Standard on Victim Assistance, which was developed in consultation with relevant stakeholders, and which clarifies the roles and responsibilities of mine action actors in victim assistance. We hope it will be a useful tool in achieving the objectives of the Convention.

Over one third of United Nations mine action programmes are engaged in victim assistance services. They most frequently provide orientation and referrals, and when funding is available, complement national efforts to facilitate access to a broad range of services and develop victim assistance policies.²

The United Nations urges Member States to provide appropriate care and ensure the full and dignified reintegration of victims in society, including through the dedication of resources and enhancement of capacities.

Thank you.
